PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

With this issue we mark the close of the second volume of Muscogiana. From the comments we have heard, we sense that our members are pleased with our efforts. Hopefully the journal will continue to be published for many years to come. Although we have still not devised a sure method of financing this venture, we are committed, nonetheless, to publishing two issues a year--one in June and the second in December.

1991 proved to be another active year for the Muscogee Genealogical Society. Our programs included talks by Society officer John Lassiter and myself on "Using the Census and other Federal Records," Dr. John Lupold on "The Records of Muscogee County," Dr. Bill Chappell on "Researching a Civil War Unit," Society member Bob Galer on "The Mayflower," and Lisa Fox of the Southeastern Library Network on "Preserving Old Books and Documents." The Society's June Social, held at the Christian Fellowship Association, featured Kendrick High School teacher Sonya Boyd, who spoke on "Family Stories." In December, our Christmas Banquet was held at Columbus College's Davidson Center; the speaker at this event was Chris Cleaveland of LaGrange, who spoke on "The Nancy Harts: A Confederate Company of Women."

In February, the Society sponsored an all-day workshop at the Columbus College Turner Center. The workshop topic was "South Carolina Records" and Brent Holcombe was the presenter; over 60 people were in attendance. In April, on a very overcast Saturday morning, about 75 individuals showed up at Linwood for our second cemetery tour, which was again expertly guided by John Lassiter. Society fieldtrips included a three-night fieldtrip in May to Columbia, South Carolina, and one-day trips to the Federal Records Center in East Point, Georgia, in April, and to the Alabama Archives in July. As another special event, the Society sponsored a four-hour beginners' workshop in July, which 57 people attended. Speakers at this event were Linda Kennedy, Debra Wisenall, Pete Kimbrough, Mary Jane Galer, John Lassiter and Callie McGinnis.

Three committees of the Society were active in 1991. The Pedigree Charts Committee, chaired by Linda Kennedy, solicited pedigree charts from members of the Society and then compiled an index of all the names on these charts. This information is on file at the Bradley Library. The Bible Records Committee, Dolores Autry, chair, held a Bible records copying event at the Bradley Library in November. The records copied from 25 old Bibles during this event are also on file at the Library. Finally, the Publications Committee sponsored a fundraiser to increase the coffers of the Publications Fund. In this endeavor, the Committee is selling canvas tote bags "bearing" a genealogical message and the name of the society. Society treasurer Debra Wisenall had primary responsibility for this project. Members who would like to order a tote bag should send a note to Debra, care of the address on the cover of Muscogiana, along with a check for $7.50 (includes handling and shipping).

As I complete my second year as president, I would like to thank all of the officers and committee chairs for their support and participation. Special thanks go to John Lassiter and Linda Kennedy for all their hard work on Muscogiana, to Debra Wisenall for keeping track of our money, and to Jimmy Holman for the wonderful job he is doing with the Endowment Fund. These individuals along with numerous others who have given their time to the Society, will agree, I am sure, that they have thoroughly enjoyed participating. In closing, let me encourage any members who would like to be more active in the Society to make that wish known to any of the current officers--we'll put you to work immediately! Working with others to gather and preserve genealogical data or to teach the "how-to's" of our favorite pastime is a very rewarding--and fun--experience. See for yourself: join us in making 1992 another great year for genealogy in Columbus, Georgia!

Best wishes for 1992,
Callie B. McGinnis

COLONEL WILLIAM L. WYNN (1799-1868):

NAMESAKE TO A NEIGHBORHOOD

- PART TWO

By

Kenneth H. Thomas, Jr.

What then became of Wynn?

Colonel William L. Wynn's association with Columbus did not end when he left in the 1840s and moved to Louisiana, as he still owned a lot of real estate and his daughter kept her ties with her relatives in the Muscogee-Russell County area.

His only surviving child, a daughter, was Anna Elizabeth Lewis Wynn, known as "Lizzie", born 2 June 1834, and named for her mother.³⁰ [It would appear that her mother, who died a week later, probably died as a result of childbirth.] While her schooling after leaving Columbus is unknown, one can assume, given their economic and social standing in Columbus, and Louisiana, she probably obtained the best a woman could have at that time.³¹ She presumably went to Louisiana with her father, and then perhaps away to boarding school as did many other Columbus women of her era. Somewhere in her travels she met an Army lieutenant with a distinguished American lineage, and like so many Columbus-born women after her, decided to marry him. She did so in Columbus.

The marriage is recorded several times, although not in the Muscogee County courthouse. It can be found in the parish register of the Trinity Episcopal Church, which indicates that the marriage took place "at Mrs. Chivers". It is the newspaper that reveals the most.

From The Columbus Enquirer, 16 Aug 1856, p. 3, col. 1: "Married:

In this city, on the morning of the 13th, by Rev. Mr. Hawks, Lieut. G. W. [sic] Garner (USA) to Miss Ann Elizabeth, daughter of Col. Wm. L. Wynn, of Assumption Parish, La., formerly of this city.

New Orleans Picayune please copy."

The Wynn and Garner family Bibles indicate they married on the 14th, and call the bride, "Lizzie", as she was known to the family.³²

Rev. William N. Hawks was rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, a post he held until his death 9 December 1865.³³ The identification of "Mrs. Chivers" is a bit more difficult. It is presumed that she was Sarah Ann Martin, wife of Thomas J. Shivers, who with her husband was either living in the Wynn home at the time of the 1850 Census, or immediately next door, since their household was adjacent to that of John R. Dawson of Gordonido.³⁴ By 1856, the Wynn home had been sold twice and was lived in by Col. Hines Holt and family.³⁵ Thus the Wynn-Garner wedding must have taken place within the city at the then-home of the Shivers family. It is also interesting that the service was Episcopal, for the parish register does not indicate her family being members, and her late mother and grandparents were Methodists. "Lizzie" Wynn Garner remained an Episcopalian until her death sixty years later.³⁶

The groom, George Gibson Garner, was born 18 May 1830 in Massachusetts, to a military family. He was a son of Captain Hezekiah Garner, U. S. Army, himself a native of Maryland, who died in 1841, and Lucy Edelin. The Garner-Edelin roots lie heavily in Virginia and Maryland.³⁷ George Garner was a cadet at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, New York, from 1847 through 1849.³⁸ Commissioned a lieutenant in 1855, he was on active military duty at the time of his wedding, although he resigned a few months later.³⁹ During the Civil War he served with the Louisiana forces, as well as under General Braxton Bragg.⁴⁰

LOUISIANA

Colonel Wynn's move to Louisiana in the 1840s was precipitated by his brothers' and brothers-in-law's movements in the same direction. Of his five brothers, three were in Mississippi or Louisiana by 1850, one was in Alabama, and the other's location is unknown. His eldest brother, Richmond Williamson Wynn (1789-1858) lived in Quachita Parish, Louisiana in 1850; Lewis Tyus Wynn (1792-1859?) was in Lafayette County, Mississippi in 1850, and Hartwell G. Wynn (1795-after 1855) was in Holmes County, Mississippi in 1850. The whereabouts of John C. Wynn, born in 1797, and presumably living with William in 1830 in Georgia, is unknown. The youngest brother (his only younger brother) Thomas G. Wynn (1803-after 1860) was in Pike Co., Alabama in 1850 and Morehouse Parish, Louisiana in 1860.⁴¹

Wynn's only sister to reach adulthood, Jane, and her husband John Low(e) were in Jones County, Georgia, as late as 1829. He may be the John Lowe, born in 1785, who was living in Caddo Parish, Louisiana in 1860.⁴²

Felix Lewis, a brother-in-law, age 47, was living in Bienville Parish, Louisiana in 1850 and had been a major land speculator in Mississippi since leaving Georgia.⁴³

Wynn began to acquire property in Louisiana as early as 1839 when federal records show his acquisition of two sections of land in Caddo Parish which opened for settlement in 1838 in the northwest portion of Louisiana, the Natchitoches Region.⁴⁴

While Wynn's sights were already on Louisiana as he was accumulating land in Columbus/Muscogee, he did not move to this northwestern area of Louisiana, but further south on the Bayou Lafourche, off the Mississippi River, in Assumption Parish, seven miles south of Napoleonville, the county seat. This was fifty or so miles west of New Orleans. He acquired land there as early as 1847. He eventually owned a 1,900-acre plantation there he named the "Georgia Plantation". It was a sugar cane plantation and he a sugar planter.⁴⁵ By 1867, Wynn, no doubt feeling the infirmities of old age, agreed to let his partner run the plantation under the name of Wynn and Barton. In the agreement, the sugar crop was to be shipped in April to New Orleans where it was consigned to Garner, Wynn and Co., the firm he had established with his son-in-law.⁴⁶

Col. Wynn, his daughter, and her family were living in the same house, presumably on the "Georgia Plantation", in the 1860 Census of Assumption Parish. Listed as a 61-year-old sugar planter, worth $100,000 each in both personal and real estate, he had in his household George G. Garner, 30, also a sugar planter, A. E. [Anna Eliza], age 26, W. L. W. Garner [William L. Wynn Garner], age 3, born in Louisiana, and George G., Jr., age 2, also born in Louisiana. Henry J. Ferrell, 39, born in Georgia, was also in the household.⁴⁷ There were 94 slaves also enumerated with the household, over twice the 43 enumerated there, without the Wynns, in 1850.⁴⁸

The 1868 City Directory of New Orleans is the first to list the firm of Garner, Wynn and Co., wholesale grocers, at 65 Common and 46 Canal Streets. The third partner was C. McCarty. Garner resided at northwest [intersection of] Camp and Philip, and Wynn at 217 Philip, although these are in actuality probably the same address.

William L. Wynn died on 28 May 1868 in New Orleans.⁴⁹ While his obituary was not found in the surviving Columbus Newspapers of the day, it was picked up by the Georgia Journal and Messenger of Macon, Georgia, on 9 June 1868: "Col. W. L. Wynn, formerly a well known citizen of Columbus, for man years [sic] a member of the legislature from Muscogee County, and after whom was named the beautiful suburban village of Wynnton, near that city, died in New Orleans on the 28th of May, aged 69 years."

A Louisiana obituary had the following to say regarding Colonel Wynn: "In the death of Col. Wm. L. Wynn, New Orleans and Louisiana have been called upon to mourn the loss of a true patriot and worthy citizen. Col. Wynn was born in Brunswick County, VA., on March 28, 1809 [1799]. When twelve year os age [under 5], he removed with his parents to Georgia, where he grew to man's estate, exhibiting those noble qualities which distinguished him during all his subsequent career. In 1849 he followed the tide of emigration to Louisiana.

The country pleased him, and to be a successful and scientific sugar planter became his highest material ambition. In a short time he purchased the Georgia plantation on the Lafouche, where he resided till the close of the late war, and which became a mine of wealth.

Belonging to that class of Louisiana planters so widely known for their generosity and integrity, and so rapidly passing away, Col. W. will leave behind him memories which link a romantic past with an, as yet, undeveloped future. In all the relations of life, with his family, his friends and his dependents, he was ever just, generous and kind. He leaves behind him but one beloved daughter, the wife of our worthy fellow citizen, Col. Geo. Garner.-- N. C. Times"⁵⁰

The date and place of his death are verified in the Wynn and Garner family Bibles, a death certificate, and his obituary in the New Orleans paper indicating he died "at Philip St., between Camp and Chestnut at residence of his son-in-law and daughter." He was described as a "large planter before the War" and was "universally esteemed by all who knew him". He was buried in what is known today as Lafayette Cemetery No. 1, in New Orleans.⁵¹

Wynn's will, probated in New Orleans, was written on 22 May 1868, a few days before his death and thus presumably with knowledge that he was on his death bed. Besides bequests to his only daughter and three of her five children, he left a bequest to a great-niece, Mary, daughter of William C. Wynn, $1,000 for education or piano".

To his grandson George G. Garner, Jr. (age 10), "my gold watch and chain and a pony", to grandson (and namesake) William W. Garner (age 11) "$500 to buy a watch and chain and a pony", and to granddaughter Lucy (age 7), "my diamond breast pin". The other two grandchildren, ages 4 and 2, were not mentioned. For his daughter: to "my only child Elizabeth Wynn, wife of Col. George G. Garner, the usufruct of the rest of my estate". He requested that his land in Assumption Parish and in Jefferson City [after 1870 part of New Orleans] not be sold or divided during his daughter's lifetime or until the youngest of her children turned 21. He left $20,000 to build a house and outbuildings upon "my lot in the City of Jefferson" per contract [more on this house later]. He advised them to use the advice of Callahan McCarty [their third partner in the business] and Elijah D. Barton for the plantation. Clifford Belcher was appointed attorney and legal advisor for the settling of the estate. The will was recorded 4 June 1868.⁵²

An inventory exists in Assumption Parish for the plantation. The land was worth $10,000, and the crops were sugar cane and corn. Among the household furnishings were vases, one marble top table, and a drawing room table. The total value of the property inventoried was $12,027.⁵³

The 1869 City Directory of New Orleans lists the firm as Garner and McCarty, wholesale grocers, with George G. Garner living at 217 Philip St. and McCarty at the City Hotel.

In the 1870 Census, the Garners were living at their new house, built under the terms of the will, in Jefferson City, New Orleans. He was an accountant.⁵⁴

Around 1873, perhaps having been prohibited as were many Southerners from resuming ownership of their plantations until they took the oath of allegiance, the Garners moved back on a seasonal basis to Assumption Parish to live at the plantation they could not sell under the terms of the will and bought more land. The land was on the right bank of the Bayou Lafourche, as was the Georgia Plantation.⁵⁵

In 1873, the same year they bought additional land in Assumption Parish, Garner transferred his Masonic membership from the T. J. Jefferson Lodge No. 191 in Jefferson City, now a part of New Orleans. In this new lodge, Assumption Lodge No. 203, Napoleonville, he eventually rose to be the Worshipful Master or president in 1876 and 1877. He died 20 May 1877 while in office.⁵⁶

Garner's obituary appeared in the Donaldsonville [LA] Chief, 9 June 1877:

"Col. Geo. G. Garner, an eminent citizen of this parish, died at his plantation on the 28th ult."

The New Orleans newspaper gave only a brief mention in its funeral notices, as was the custom then. It indicated he died on the Georgia Plantation and that the funeral would be from the late residence on St. Charles, between Robert and Soniat St.⁵⁷

Under the terms of the will of Col. Wynn, by which his daughter and grandchildren owned the Georgia Plantation, nothing could be sold until the youngest was 21. Even though he did not name the two youngest children, they were legally included in the stipulation, making the sale impossible until 1886. Although the youngest child died in 1874, her death only pushed the date back to 1885. Although Col. Garner's own death in 1877 came at the end of official reconstruction of the South, the family was no doubt still facing many of the financial problems other Southerners faced with the changing times and possibly the need to rid themselves of their major asset, a large plantation.

It was at this juncture, shortly after their father's death, that the two oldest Garner grandsons went to court and became "emancipated"; they were legally authorized to transact business as adults rather than waiting until they were 21.⁵⁸ This may have been done to hasten the sale of the plantation in Assumption, since they would not have been 21 until 1878 and 1879, although Lizzie and her three sons were living in Assumption Parish in 1880 with George, Junior, as overseer.⁵⁹

THE DESCENDANTS

Lizzie Wynn and George Garner had five children. Their places of birth reflect the movement of the family until settling in New Orleans with her father at the end of the Civil War.⁶⁰

MUSCOGIANA, VOL. 2, NOS. 3 & 4

1. William L. Wynn Garner. Born 13 June 1857 at the Georgia Plantation, Assumption Parish, LA. Died 13 April 1921, age 63, in New Orleans.⁶¹ In the 1900 Census of New Orleans, he had a wife, Mary E., born in January 1868, to whom he had been married ten years. They had no children. He was a "collector". They lived at 4910 Magazine St.⁶² No known descendants.

2. George G. Garner, Jr. Born 22 July 1858, at Winchester, Virginia [presumably while visiting a summer resort or relatives]. Died 13 Oct 1908, age 50.⁶³ In the 1900 Census of New Orleans, he was an insurance solicitor. He and his wife, Mary B., born 1856, had been married 12 years, and had no children. They lived at 1732 3rd St.⁶⁴ No descendants known.

3. Lucy Edelin Garner. Born 25 December 1860, Iberville Parish (which joined Assumption), Louisiana. More on her descendants later.

4. Lewis Edelin Garner. Born 27 March 1864 in Mobile, "during the War". Died 9 April 1916 in New Orleans, just a month before his mother.⁶⁵ In the 1900 Census of New Orleans, he was single, living as a boarder at 1036 Conti St., and his occupation was insurance collector.⁶⁶ No descendants known.

5. Lizzie Garner, Born 16 Nov 1865 in New Orleans. Died 13 October 1874 in Assumption Parish, age 8.⁶⁷

After her husband's death, "Lizzie" Wynn Garner lived at the house on St. Charles Avenue in Jefferson City (now New Orleans) until she moved to Jackson, Mississippi before 1900 to live with her daughter Lucy and her family.⁶⁸ It was in Jackson that she died 7 May 1916 at her daughter's house.⁶⁹

She was buried in New Orleans in the same above-ground vault where her father, husband, and three of her children, Lizzie, William, and Lewis, would finally rest. One tombstone or vault cover serves for all six entombments.⁷⁰ Her son George's burial is not known at this point.⁷¹

LUCY GARNER GREEN AND FAMILY

Lucy E. Garner Green was the only child of the Garners known to have descendants living today. She married 24 April 1849 in New Orleans to Marcellus Green (1851-1947) of Jackson, Mississippi and they returned to Jackson to live.⁷² Lucy Green was active in many local organizations, was a member of DAR (on her Garner line's Hanson ancestor) and other patriotic societies. She died on Christmas Eve, 1943, on the eve of her 83rd Birthday.⁷³

Marcellus Green, son of early Jackson pioneer settlers, was an attorney who almost lived to be 100. Their home at 633 North State Street burned in 1966. The Greens had seven children, five of whom married, and they have many descendants living in Jackson and elsewhere.⁷⁴

The only known portrait of Col. William L. Wynn rests with a current descendant.⁷⁵ Other portraits of Mrs. Garner and her children also remain for the most part with members of the family. Family tradition has it that several were painted when the family went to Toronto, Canada to escape yellow fever.⁷⁶

The home of the Greens' eldest son, Garner Wynn Green, originally at 647 North State St., was recently moved across North State Street in Jackson, restored and is now professional offices.⁷⁷

The Green descendants are quite aware of their family heritage and retain the family Bibles, portraits, diplomas, photographs, and other memorabilia of their ancestors.

AFTERWORD

Col. William L. Wynn's post-Columbus story is only partially covered by this second article. No doubt extensive research in New Orleans will reveal other interesting data about him and his family's role there during the Civil War and early Reconstruction days.

The home built by Wynn's daughter and son-in-law in New Orleans, now known as 5005 S. Charles Avenue, has since 1925 been the home of the Orleans Club, a private women's social and cultural club. Mrs. Lucy Garner Green was, during her lifetime, an honorary life member. The club's published history and current manager indicate that the club is well-aware of its connection to Col. Wynn.⁷⁸

WYNN-BUTLER HOUSE, CFA

Col. Wynn's house in Columbus, at 1240 Wynnton Road, was sold by him after he had moved to Louisiana. In a deed dated 13 February 1852, he sold a tract of land which included "my residence in Wynnton" along with 100 acres, more or less, for $6,500. The estate bordered on the north "St. Mary's Road" (now Buena Vista Road/Wynnton Road) and on the east John R. Dawson, whose home survives today as Gordonido, set then on five acres sold him by Wynn in 1837.⁷⁹

The house was purchased in 1852 by Henry Hurt (1814-1872), one of several sons of Joel Hurt of Russell County, Alabama. Henry Hurt, a bachelor, was a brother to Joel Early Hurt (1821-1865) who later owned Dinglewood.⁸⁰ Henry Hurt did not live in the Wynn home long, if he ever did, and sold the same property in 1855 for $14,000 to Col. Hines Holt (1805-1865), an attorney, U. S. Congressman and later a Confederate Congressman.⁸¹

The home remained in the Holt family until it was sold 12 June 1905 to John Thomas Cooper (1853-1917) and his wife Lenora (Newsome) Cooper.⁸² He was president of Cooper Lumber Company. After he purchased the house and 18 acres for $12,00, the house was moved to face Wynnton Road, as the road had then become known. This move probably took place in the fall of 1907. By June, 1908 postcards were on sale in Columbus showing the house in its new setting and labelled as the "Ideal Southern Home".⁸³

Cooper died at the house 10 April 1917, and is buried at Linwood Cemetery.⁸⁴ In 1932, his heirs sold the house to Mary E. and S. C. Butler. In 1958 James W. Woodruff, Sr. (1879-1963) arranged a swap of historic houses with Mrs. Butler, and thus the Wynn House was transferred to the Christian Fellowship Association as their permanent home, as it remains today. Besides the activities of the owner organization, the house is available for meetings and receptions.

The William L. Wynn House, a fine example of Greek Revival architecture, was listed on the National Register of Historic Places on February 1, 1972 by the Secretary of the Interior.⁸⁵

PERSONAL ADDENDA

My own connection to the Wynn Plantation or Estate, which ran from what is now Wynnton Road-Buena Vista Road from Col. Wynn's home (now the CFA) to Brown Avenue and on down that road is as follows: My grandmother's sister, Jennie Mae Russell Brooks (1890-1971) and her husband Z. A. "Doc" Brooks (1870-1947), owned a large tract of land at the corner of Buena Vista Road and Brown Avenue. Their house as 1962 Buena Vista Road. It was within this family tract that my grandparents, J. H. and Helen (Russell) Brooks, lived during the 1920s-1930s and where my mother, Helen Louise Brooks (Mrs. Kenneth H. Thomas, Sr.) grew up. All of this land was within the original Wynn estate. Our family automobile business, begun in the late 1940s as Brooks and Thomas Motor Co., was first located at the corner of Buena Vista Road and Brown Avenue, on the site that later became Wells Dairies. (My grandfather had operated a service station at this location during he 1930s and 1940s.) Later it was moved across the street and was there in the early 1950s before moving downtown to 4th Avenue. For a while, c. 1950, at the time my sister, Helen Melissa was born, we lived at the corner of Lockwood Avenue and Buena Vista Road, across the street from the original family tract mentioned above.

30. Wynn Family Bible (Xerox copy in possession of Joshua Green, Jackson, MS.) Hereafter "Wynn Family Bible".
31. The daughters of John Banks, planter, who owned the Cedars, not far from the Wynn home in Columbus, went to the Patapsco Female Institute, near Baltimore, Maryland. In checking the 1850 Census for the whereabouts of Lucy (Edelin) Garner, mother of George G. Garner, I found a woman of that name as a teacher at the institute along with a student named Jane Garner, the same name as his younger sister. If this is indeed his widowed mother, it could be that Miss Wynn attended the institute and met her future husband through his mother. At this writing, this is pure conjecture.

WOMEN IN COLUMBUS -

By

Cheryl Jorgensen

In 1895 a convention of the National American Woman Suffrage Association was to be held in Atlanta, but the majority of the suffragettes came from Columbus. At that time H. Augusta Howard, resident of Columbus and the founder of the Georgia Woman's Suffrage Association, welcomed national suffrage leaders Susan B. Anthony, Anna Howard Shaw, and Harriet Taylor Upton to her home for a three day visit.¹ The women of the NAWSA were scorned, laughed at and misunderstood, but they were unfaltering. Their immediate goal was to achieve equal rights at the polls; they knew it would not be easy.

The federal suffrage amendment was first introduced in Congress in 1878, and representatives of the National Woman Suffrage Association had it reintroduced in each succeeding congress thereafter. Finally, by the year 1919 it looked as though the amendment might be passed. At this time suffragists abounded in the state of Georgia with their leadership now located in Atlanta. But the women in Columbus were still active in the movement. They kept the cause alive at teas, card parties, and dances.² They distributed pamphlets and canvassed the public door-to-door. They used the society column in the daily newspapers as a platform for suffrage news and opinions. Mrs. J. S. Gordy, society editor for the Columbus Enquirer-Sun until September of 1919, was especially effective in this respect.

The women of Columbus wanted citizenship. They felt that if they obeyed the laws and paid their taxes, they should also be able to vote.³ In 1895 the suffrage cry was, "Taxation without representation is tyranny--women are taxed".⁴ That slogan was just as viable in 1919. This point is stressed in a poem printed by Mrs. Gordy on August 7, 1919 in the society section of the Enquirer-Sun.

When my pa is writing letters, ma must always linger near
To assist him in his spelling and to make his meaning clear.
If he needs advice, her judgment, he admits, is always best;
Every day she gives him pointers, mostly at his own request.
She keeps track of legislation and is taxed on bonds and stocks.
But she never gets a look-in at the ballot box.⁵

It was also hoped by those supporting an amendment that once women had the vote, female citizens would act as a cohesive force and use the political system to remake society, turning the government away from war and corruption.⁶ To this end the National American Woman Suffrage Association recommended the organization of a non-militant, non-partisan league of women voters. The object of this order was to "scrutinize proposed legislation, conduct research into the conditions of the country, to become thoroughly informed, and increase the effectiveness of women voters."⁷

The formation of the League of Women Voters caused some concern in Columbus.

"If the women of the country, after having been given the privilege of exercising the elective franchise, shall unite ... what would be the result? There are about as many women in the country as there are men, if not more. Suppose then that they should unite into one great party. The result would be, if they stick together, that they would be certain to elect their candidates for office every time."⁸

Much of this anxiety was also a reaction to the activities of the National Women's Party. In the month of June 1916, the National Women's Party was formed in the twelve states where women had the presidential vote. This party took an anti-Democratic position and chose a more militant approach than the NAWSA. On January 10, 1917 the Woman's Party picketed the White House. The technique of picketing wasn't a novelty, but picketing the White House was. Later these silent demonstrations turned into mob violence because of the party's banners implying that the United States was a "democracy in name only." These exhibitions usually ended in the arrests of the women involved.⁹

The actions of the suffragists of the Woman's Party were denounced as obstructions to the success of the suffrage amendment. (A branch of this party was formed in Georgia in 1917, but it didn't project much influence).¹⁰ On May 11, 1919 Mrs. Gordy devotes a page in the society section of the Enquirer-Sun to questions and answers about the NAWSA. In this article she makes clear the distinctions between the NAWSA and the Women's Party.

"It is a most natural mistake of the person who knows little of suffrage to confound the national association with the militant body of suffragists, whose idea is most erroneous. No body of women could be more conservative than the national association nor less in sympathy with picketing the White House, burning the president's speeches and similar unfortunate occurrences of which their more impatient sisters have been guilty."¹¹

On May 3, 1919 the women of Atlanta were given the right to vote in the white primaries by action of the city executive committee. Not long after Mrs. J. Dozier, secretary of the Muscogee County Equal Franchise League, congratulated those in Atlanta, women in Columbus organized to push for the right to vote in their city's primaries. A meeting was arranged at the home of Mrs. Pou, president of the Muscogee Equal Franchise League. The league decided upon the necessity of taking a suffrage census in a house-to-house canvass.¹² But the drive for the right to vote in the primaries in Columbus was unfruitful. There was still a considerable amount of anti-suffrage sentiment in the city.

What reasons were given by those opposed to the enfranchisement of women? On July 12, 1919 the Columbus Enquirer-Sun printed some answers to the question, "Are you in favor of woman suffrage?" Although this reporter only printed the replies of five individuals, four of their answers were indicative of the bulk of anti-suffrage opinion.¹³ It was felt that women should leave politics alone and concentrate on the home. It was doubted that women would know how to effectively utilize the vote if they obtained it. They believed that suffrage was a topic that a large number of women were actually indifferent to, and more importantly, it was presumed that woman suffrage would jeopardize the existing white control of Southern politics.

In response to the Enquirer-Sun's question, James Palmer (Captain of the county police force) replied, "God made woman as man's companion and never intended for her to go to the polls. Her places is in the home."¹⁴ This view is further amplified in an editorial, also from the Enquirer-Sun, printed on August 5, 1919.

"We do not wish to be understood as saying that women are not mentally fitted for ballot. We are not arguing this question from a political viewpoint at all. Ours is a plea for the home and its influences, and every man knows that there is no home on earth as good as that presided over by a good woman--a good wife and mother....No mother can give attention to such matters without neglecting her home affairs, and she is the proper person--the person intended by our Maker--to take care of the home."¹⁵

W. J. Owen (US deputy marshall) was also against suffrage " ... for the simple reason that ... women would vote as their husbands, brothers, or sweethearts voted."¹⁶ After the women in Atlanta voted in their first primary, E. C. Buchanan commented that he didn't feel that the majority of the women voting in the primary knew what they were doing. They "voted like a bunch of cattle."¹⁷ These comments were directed toward those women that would vote. Many felt that women wouldn't use the vote once they obtained it. An editorial printed on November 14, 1919 expounding on another article reported that more than two-thirds of the women in New York City who were eligible to register failed to do so. "The registration figures ... are sufficient to indicate pretty clearly that the right of suffrage is not appreciated as much by the women as the clamor some of them have made for it would indicate. It appears to have been more in the nature of a fad than anything else."¹⁸ Miss I. Gunnells, demonstrates her indifference. "I haven't the time to think about it [suffrage] or to vote if suffrage is ever granted."¹⁹

On Jun 5, 1919 the United States Senate adopted the Susan B. Anthony constitutional amendment, sending it to the states for ratification. The state of Georgia wasted no time in scheduling this amendment for discussion. A bill for ratification was introduced on June 26, 1919. The suffragist leaders were hoping that Georgia would initially ignore the federal action. They wanted to wait until a new legislature was selected "in view of the fact that this legislature is overwhelmingly against the federal amendment."²⁰ But it became clear to the suffrage organizations that they would have to take some sort of action.

Mrs. Mary F. Pou, on June 25, 1919, made a plea to the women of Columbus. "Now is the time to act. Our representatives stand ready to act on the will of the women of Georgia. On ... June 28th all women in the city and county who desire to be enlisted in telegrams favoring ratification are requested to phone Mrs. W.G. Cotton. These names will be added to those ... favoring this great step forward for the advancement and welfare of our country."²¹ Different forms for telegrams to be sent to the legislative session in Atlanta were published in the Enquirer-Sun representing different classes of women; businesswomen, teachers, nurses, property owners, industrial workers, etc. Each signer was to choose the form to which her name would be affixed. Two examples follow:

For teachers--"We are teachers in the schools of Columbus and Muscogee County to whom are entrusted the moral and mental training of 6,000 children in the city and county schools, yet we have no voice in the counsels of the city, county, state or nation, whose deliberations control legislation bearing direction on mental and moral conditions. We ask your vote for ratification of the suffrage amendment to relieve us of this injustice."

For widows and single women--"We are widows and single women who have no man of our immediate family to represent us in elections either local or national, yet we have vital interests at stake and personal principles involved. We ask your vote for ratification of the suffrage amendment to relieve us of this injustice."²²

The response from the women of Columbus was good. As of June 27th, hundreds of names had already been collected.²³

By July 24, 1919 the fight for ratification in Georgia was over. The legislature not only decided that the Susan B. Anthony amendment was not to be ratified, they also added the words "but is hereby rejected."²⁴ There were two main reasons for this action. First, in the South, one source of anti-suffrage lay in fear of the Negro vote. These men did not want to strengthen any attempt to overthrow the system of "Jim Crow" restrictions which were in defiance of the 14th and 15th amendments.²⁵ "If women voted, it would increase the number of incompetents having recourse to the ballot because of the large number of negro women that would thus become enfranchised."²⁶

It was now thought that the Georgia legislature might pass a state law extending the vote to women in the primaries of the state. The editor of the Enquirer-Sun points out that this "would give the white woman an influence in state politics without extending it to the negroes."²⁷ This would also better serve the state's rights advocates of Georgia. "It will be better to leave the states to settle these matters than to have the [federal] government fix them in such a way as they will not be acceptable to the people."²⁸ Unfortunately, state action was not taken.

Suffrage had been dealt a blow in Georgia, but the federal fight was not yet over. What did the women of Columbus do while waiting for the nation to ratify the proposed federal amendment? They continued to work toward the spiritual, moral, and social betterment of the United States through their participation in a multitude of different social clubs. Many of these social clubs were also involved in the fight for suffrage such as the Woman's Reading club, the Student's club, the Orpheus club, and various Parent-Teacher associations, but numerous clubs never officially endorsed enfranchisement.²⁹ The Woman's Christian Temperance Union never publicly supported the suffrage movement, and the Columbus chapter of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs did not adopt a suffrage resolution until November of 1919.³⁰

The women of Columbus took a stand on a variety of issues, from the League of Nations to the Pasteurization of milk. They served on committees for child welfare and education. They volunteered in hospitals; they worked with the Red Cross, the Girl Scouts, and the War Camp Service. They held book drives for the public library, raised money for victory loans and war memorials, and were busy in educational campaigns to teach women how to effectively spend the family's money. They wrote resolutions against gambling at carnivals and petitioned against the playing of baseball on Sundays. Through the organized efforts of the Columbus branch of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union they campaigned against alcohol and tobacco. There was the universal feeling that women were a vital and helpful feature of society, their purpose being to assist and serve the country.³¹

The City Federation of Women's Clubs, with Mrs. Rhodes Browne as president, was especially active. Mrs. Browne explained in an address to members of the Georgia Federation of Women's Club in November of 1919, what she perceived to be the role of women in the post-World War I era.

"The last two years have made the world different; everything is different; we, ourselves, are different. We are facing dangerous conditions in this great reconstruction period, a woman's vision will be necessary. Never before has a sense of duty been more overwhelming. I believe that every woman here is eager to do her duty, to have a part in solving the problems of the future; and I know of no greater power or good, nor a finer influence than a woman's to make of the world a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

As the gospel of the Eighteenth century was liberty, the motto of the Nineteenth century equality, let the shibboleth of the Twentieth century be service."³²

At the same time that these women were trying to improve the world, they were also being criticized for their changing life styles. Women were more outspoken and they were no longer restricted by dress codes. An editorial in the Enquirer-Sun comments on the new "modern woman".

"The modern dress, the modern dance, the modern music, and modern manners are symptoms that indicate that somehow in this age we have lost our bearings; and the old values of life, once so brightly prized have been forgotten. There is the danger of a lessening, if not a loss, of the oldtime reverence for womanhood.

Real men may look [at women in shorter skirts], they may smile; but secretly they scorn."³³

The role of women in the work force was also changing. Women were being hired for all types of positions. The professional and businesswomen of Georgia began organizing in June of 1919. But the working woman was not always looked upon with approval. As mentioned previously, many felt that the only proper place for a woman was in the home. It was also felt that women should not take jobs away from men. "It may be fine for the women of the country to take the positions held by men while they served in the great war ... it is all wrong for them to keep those positions when their heroes come back home."³⁴ This sentiment was repeated even when new job opportunities were opening to women. The examinations for RFD carriers in Muscogee County were opened to both males and females in May of 1919, but "only single women or the wives of soldiers in the American Army in France" would be eligible to apply.³⁵ It was all right for the women of Columbus to volunteer their time, but the men should be the ones to hold the paid positions.

The Susan B. Anthony amendment was ratified in August of 1920. Women in most of the United States looked forward to casting their votes in the November elections. Georgia was an exception. Under Georgia law, all voters were to be registered six months before the date of an election. Initially, A. J. Flynt, the chairman of the Democratic executive committee refused to call a meeting of the sub-committee to amend the primary rules to permit women to register for the up-coming September primaries.³⁶ When a meeting was finally held on September 3, 1920, the executive committee denied women the possibility of the vote in the upcoming elections. Any county allowing women to vote would have their returns thrown out and the election declared null and void.³⁷

What was the reaction of the women in Columbus? The following was in a letter to the Enquirer-Sun by Anna Griffin of the Muscogee County League of Women Voters: "Georgia suffragists rejoice with a deep ... satisfaction in the slow but final steps that have enfranchised the women of our dear country. We feel humiliated that we in Georgia, will not have the power to exercise the privilege until long ago after our sisters in other states."³⁸ But even though they felt frustrated, the women of Columbus made plans to "study the principles of citizenship with the special purpose of helping to bring about the highest possible standard of public service, free of prejudice and partisan bitterness, and also to promote intercommunity co-operation."³⁹ They attended citizenship classes, and the League of Women Voters held a luncheon series to explain the laws on registration.⁴⁰

The refusal of the state of Georgia to permit women to vote in the upcoming elections raised many questions. Did the nineteenth amendment turn null and void any state laws to the contrary? If women were turned away from the polls, would the elections be valid? Did the federal law give women the right to vote in Georgia without registering, thereby giving them privileges that were not enjoyed by the males? These questions were asked by both the men and women of the state. A plea by Georgia citizens went out to Governor Dorsey asking him to call a special session of the state legislature so that the registration laws could be amended before November.⁴¹

In the meantime women were registering. Even if they couldn't vote in November, they would then be eligible to vote in every city, county, and state election taking place six months after they had registered to vote.⁴²

On November 2, 1920 elections were held without any measures taken to amend the registration laws. Many leading suffragists, including Mrs. Mary McLendon of Atlanta, urged the women of Georgia to ignore the law and "just go to the polls and vote".⁴³ Women, both black and white, in every ward of Atlanta, tried to do just that but were turned away.⁴⁴ The women of Columbus sat quietly and waited until the city elections of 1921 for their opportunity to go to the polls.

In September of 1921 the citizens of Columbus (women included) voted to change the form of city government from the alderman to the commission system. Five commissioners were to be elected to these new municipal positions in December.

On September 30th the Enquirer-Sun initiated a straw ballot campaign. Its readers were to send in ballots found in the paper nominating their favorite candidates to fill the commissioner slots. On October 1, 1921, the Enquirer-Sun published the first list of fifty names. Of this fifty, eight nominees were women.⁴⁵ The newspaper published the final count of straw votes on October 16th. Two women, Miss Anna Griffin and Mrs. J. E. Minter, were included in the top five finalists.⁴⁶ The League of Women Voters called a special meeting to be held at the public library with Mrs. Browne presiding. At this meeting the league went on record as being in favor of a woman on the new city commission.⁴⁷ These women endorsed Miss Anna Griffin, age 61, the press representative for the League of Women Voters, as their candidate for city commissioner.⁴⁸

The Democratic primary for the city election was to be held on November 26th. Interest was high among the women, and seven hundred women were expected to vote as a solid block for Miss Griffin. This was commented on by Mrs. C. E. Battle, chairman of the League of Women Voters campaign committee. "Women of course, want a woman on the board, we feel we are entitled to it, and we have confidence enough in our fathers, husbands, brothers, and beaus, to believe that they are going to pay up."⁴⁹

Miss Griffin won at the primaries and she won a seat on the commission at the December 20th municipal elections. The suffragists of Columbus had advanced from being the objects of ridicule to those who were getting their candidate elected in the municipal elections. In the words of Carrie Chapman Catt, the president of the NASWA from 1915 to 1947, "We are no longer petitioners, we are not wards of the nation, but free and equal citizens."⁵⁰ The women of Columbus had come a long way.

LIST OF REGISTERED WOMEN VOTERS

THE CITY OF COLUMBUS, GEORGIA

JUNE 27, 1921

The names listed below are of Columbus women who were registered to vote as of June 27, 1921. The list has been taken from "List of Registered Voters of Columbus, Ga., June 27, 1921", an 84-page publication put out by the city. The alphabetical list is divided into four categories. The first and largest of these is an untitled list of white male voters. Second, is a list of registered "women voters", which includes only white women. Third, is a three-page list of "colored men voters", and last, a five-page list of "colored women voters."

The booklet, which is probably the first published Columbus voter registration listing to contain the names of female voters, is part of the A. C. Smith Collection, which is housed in the Columbus College Archives.

Because of space limitations, the following is a partial listing of white and black females whose names appear in the booklet. The listing will be continued in the next issue.
